Arte, The First Antonio Citterio Designed Building in the United States, Unveiled in Surfside

July 24, 2017 in News, Surfside

Arte, the first building designed by world-renowned Italian master architect Antonio Citterio has been unveiled in Surfside. The oceanfront development features 16 ultra-luxury residences over 170,000 total developed SF and spans an entire acre of beach front. Units at Arte feature expansive terraces, designed to be used as external rooms. Amenities including indoor and outdoor pools, spa, fitness room, tennis court and golf simulator, and a clubhouse with designated parking across the street. The lush landscaping around the property is by acclaimed landscape designer Enzo Enea, one of the world's leading landscape architecture firms. The common gardens created by Enea are an extension of the spa facilities at beach level which blend together they create tranquil interior and exterior spaces. Sitting in front of the building's site, is one of renowned American artist Robert Indiana's iconic ART sculptures. The building was designed by Citterio's firm Antonio Citterio Patricia Viel, known for designing iconic structures all over the world include the Bulgari Hotels in Dubai, London, Milan and Bali, and the Mandarin Oriental in Milan. Arte is currently under construction with expected completion in 2018.
