Practice Tennis Like Roger Federer At These Haute Developments

September 16, 2019 by Natasha Bazika

A truly universal game that can be played for life, tennis is the most popular individual sport spanning the globe with more than 1 billion followers. Known as one of the four “Grand Slams” alongside Wimbledon, The Australian Open and French Open – The US Open is the crown jewel to the summer sporting season. Whether inside or out, some of today’s urban developers are designating valuable square footage at multimillion-dollar developments to private regulation-size tennis courts. No longer an afterthought, tennis is gaining prominence as a must-have amenity. Here are four courts across the country to practice your backhand on.

We head down south to Miami Beach for an outdoor tennis experience—after all, it’s the sunshine state. At Arte Surfside, a collection of 16 luxury condominiums in Surfside, residents can practice their forehand, backhand, spin, and lobs on the rooftop tennis court. The court crowns the ultra-luxury oceanfront development’s dedicated amenities building, which also boasts a spa, fitness center and billiards lounge.
